

Accessibility Statement

Provisional version

We believe that the Internet should be accessible to everyone, and we are committed to making this site usable by as many people as possible, regardless of individual abilities and conditions of use.

Our goal is to comply with the accessibility principles established by the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) of the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C). These guidelines describe how to make digital content usable by people with different needs, including visual, hearing, motor, cognitive, neurological, or sensory disabilities.

Compliance status

The site is currently being adapted and there may still be sections or content that are not fully accessible.

We are working to progressively improve accessibility, correct any critical issues, and introduce new technical solutions to ensure an increasingly inclusive experience.

The official Accessibility Statement will be published shortly, once the technical analysis has been completed the technical analysis and the necessary interventions have been implemented.
